OBJECTIVES

This course is designed for English-speaking students who have academic training through the level of low-intermediate Spanish.

- Learn about topics such as gender, family, sexuality, nations and nationalism, environment, religion, and migrations in Spain.
- Expand knowledge of literature and cinema, and social, political, and economic problems in modern Spanish society.
- Become familiar with Spanish print and electronic media.
- Improve communication skills in real life situations.
- Be more familiar with some typical Spanish and regional customs.
- Gain a better understanding of some peculiar aspects of modern Spanish culture and society.
- Better understand the impact that the second language has on the mother tongue.
- Become more aware of cultural differences and intercultural values.
- Develop the BICS (Basic Interpersonal Communicative Skills) skills necessary for social and conversational communication.
- Develop CALP (Cognitive Academic Language Proficiency) competence, necessary for the reception and oral and written production of academic content, justification of opinions, synthesis of hypotheses, and interpretation of evidence in a formal (academic) register.
- Develop vocabulary and improve the use of the language sufficient to accomplish these objectives, and to read and understand a variety of genres, from newspaper articles to literary texts.
- Develop greater structural precision in written Spanish spelling, syntax, and lexicon.
- Deepen the knowledge of artistic trends, political and social events, etc., with a broad and nuanced vision, open to critical analysis, from the knowledge of the heritage of the cultures of origin, and in relation to the cultures of contemporary Spain.
- From an intercultural perspective,
 - apply critical analysis when considering the facts of Spain's cultural heritage

- adopt an intercultural, critical, and comprehensive perspective of the values, attitudes, and behaviors that occur in the social life of Spain.

OUTCOMES

Students who complete this course will:

- solidify independent use of Spanish commensurate with the CEFR B2 level, which entails a degree of fluency such that conversation with native speakers is relatively natural and text can be produced on a wide range of subjects with the ability to articulate pros and cons of an argument
- be informed and critical consumers of Spanish media
- be able to discuss social and political issues in contemporary Spain
- be able to compare and contrast distinctive characteristics of Spanish culture(s) and students' home culture(s)

METHODOLOGY

This course is designed with reference to the standards of the CEFR (Common European Framework of Reference for Languages), as well as the National Standards for Foreign Language Education of the American Council for the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL). The ACTFL five C's (Communication, Cultures, Connections, Comparisons, Communities), therefore, inform the linguistic, communicative and cultural perspective of the class.

We use a CLIL (Content and Language Integrated Learning) approach. The CLIL method works in two ways: learning Spanish through the content of the course, and learning the content of the course through the use of Spanish. The absorption of the language is sought in a natural way and not in a forced way, since the language is used in real-life situations and is applied to contexts other than the classroom.

The didactic approach in the classroom has two aspects: a theoretical one, in which the main grammatical structures of Spanish are identified and explained; and a practical one, in which activities are carried out inside and outside the classroom, all of which are aimed at teaching acquisition of communication skills and promoting linguistic immersion. We embrace a thematic approach, in which in each session a series of grammatical, lexical, functional, pragmatic, and sociocultural elements are interrelated. We differentiate between activities aimed at the acquisition of shapes and structures of language, and those aimed at free production. Each unit begins with a presentation of grammatical concepts along with practical examples of those concepts in use. Next, activities are developed that allow you to progress in mastering these concepts. The methodology is emphatically practical, hence the grammatical explanations are always oriented to the development of communication skills in which the most complicated structures of Spanish grammar are assimilated.

The curriculum is adapted to individual student needs, with reinforcement activities for those with less advanced mastery within the course level, and supplements for those who are more advanced. The learning needs of heritage learners are specifically addressed throughout the course.

COURSE PLANNING, PARTICIPATION, PREPARATION AND HOMEWORK

- The course consists of 22 sessions of 120 minutes each. The sessions are divided into two blocks, generally alternating between grammatical structures and communicative activities carried out inside and outside the classroom.
- The dynamics of the class are based on the learning of relevant vocabulary and useful structures. Topics are chosen according to the communication environments that you encounter during your stay in Spain. Visual, graphic and auditory resources are utilized to reinforce communicative competence gained through grammar and conversation. The different registers – formal, colloquial, and vulgar – are examined in oral and written form. There is constant writing practice based on the stimulation of imagination, verbal creativity, and simulation of different textual models. At the end of each session assignments are given. All assignments are subject to modifications based on the progress and needs of the class.
- In order for you to obtain the maximum academic benefit from the course, it is expected that you dedicate at least two hours of study or writing for each teaching hour at the Spanish Institute.
- Academic advising is available from the teaching staff, whom you can consult on class days, by email, or during weekly office hours. Individualized activities may be designed according to your needs to reinforce or expand the content covered in class. Information regarding academic accommodations was requested at the time of application to the Spanish Institute. In addition, you must inform the Spanish Institute and your instructors of special academic needs on the first day of class, so that relevant accommodations can be made.

ATTENDANCE

Attendance at academic sessions inside and outside the classroom is mandatory. Punctuality is of great importance, which is why non-punctuality will have a negative impact on the final grade. You must attend all classes to receive appropriate credit. Each absence is penalized with 5% less on the final grade. Four unexcused absences will result in failure of the course. In addition, lateness to, or early departure from, two sessions is equivalent to an absence. Active participation is essential in this course and it is expected that you contribute enthusiastically and respectfully. You are responsible for being informed about class content, announcements, tests or assignments missed due to absence.

If you miss more than 4 sessions without valid justification, you will fail the course and your attendance record will be reported to your university. An excused absence is one that is accompanied by a doctor's note: Signed, stamped and dated. Traveling is not an excuse.

EVALUATION CRITERIA

Two projects are scheduled on the syllabus during the course sessions.

- Midterm Project (20%): The midterm project is an oral presentation of 10 to 15 minutes to be made to the instructor individually, topic related to those developed in class. Some research is expected to prepare you for the presentation. Prior to the presentation, a three-page summary of the topic to be presented shall be submitted to the instructor. More specific instructions on the midterm project will be given prior to midterm.
- Final Project (20%): The oral project at the end of the course follows the format of the midterm project, focusing on the topics that have been dealt with in the second half of the course. More specific instructions on the final project will be distributed timely.
- Participation (15%): Evaluated according to the degree and quality of performance in conversation and class discussion, with attention to the ability to propose and express ideas through oral language production, as well as the ability to use the language as an instrument for constructive exposition and argumentation through informed, relevant, meaningful and critical verbal acts. Factors in the evaluation of participation include (but are not limited to) the following:

Using Spanish in class.

- Saying hello and goodbye in Spanish.
- Using Spanish to address the instructor and classmates to address both academic and non-academic topics.
- Willingness to participate in all class activities.
- Participation during work in groups or pairs.
- Respectful and positive attitude towards the instructor and classmates. The use of mobile phones, computers or any electronic device is restricted to only those occasions when the instructor requests it.
- Assignments and Quizzes (15%): Assignments are evaluated, either individually or cooperatively, with reference to rigorous immersive and academic treatment of course contents. Assignment due dates will be announced. Late assignments will not be accepted. Oral or written quizzes may be administered without warning. It is your responsibility always to come to class prepared for quizzes on any material that has previously been covered in class.
- Portfolio (30%): The portfolio consists of three essays of 250-300 words, each corresponding to one of the blocks that comprise this course. Essay prompts will be given in class. Each essay will consist of a draft that will be submitted together with the final essay, pages stapled and numbered. Both the drafts and the final essays must be typewritten, double-spaced. All submitted work must have the following heading:

Student name

Draft # 1-o-Final Version

Course Name / Instructor Name

Nº # of words

Title of composition

Date

These must be original written assignments and not a copy or plagiarism of other authors. In the event that verbatim citations are used, they must be clearly indicated as such. Plagiarism is considered a serious irregularity that entails automatic failure. Essays must be submitted on the due-date, and will not be accepted after that date without penalty. Portfolios submitted one day late are penalized by 5%. Those submitted two to five days late are penalized 10%. Those submitted after five days are failed.

VERY IMPORTANT: Presentations and oral projects cannot be read aloud. Otherwise, the grade will be considerably affected. (Powerpoint is permitted.)

Exam dates cannot be changed, except in cases of justified absence. Authorization to take the exam on a date other than the one initially set is at the discretion of the director.

At all times, you are expected to show a positive and supportive attitude to both the instructor and your classmates, paying attention to the development of the class and becoming involved and contributing actively and responsibly to the learning process. Any behavior or attitude that denotes a lack of respect will not be tolerated. Some examples, but not exclusively, of disrespectful attitude and behavior could be: use of rude vocabulary, any form of intimidation, continuous interruptions, not following the instructor's instructions. Students with inappropriate behavior must leave the course.

Please do not:

- Eat or drink in class.
- Use mobile phones.
- Use the computers for uses that are not related to the class.
- Interrupt the class by entering late or leaving early.
- Disrespect the instructor or classmates.

CONTENT SEQUENCING (Course Calendar)

Course content and class assignments and activities may be subject to modifications according to the progress and needs of the class. In this case, you will be informed well in advance. Insofar as the course focus is Spain today, please be attentive to Spanish print, broadcast, and online media.
